

We develop energy-efficient drying solutions for public, shared, and private environments.

NIMO

For over 80 years, NIMO has been a pioneer in drying cabinets and textile care, with a strong foundation in both tradition and innovation. From our start in a garage in Jönköping, we have grown into a global player, all while maintaining a commitment to quality, sustainability, and the dedication of our employees. Our production in Hova is characterized by care and precision, and our products continue to meet the needs of today and tomorrow by combining energy efficiency with gentle textile care.

I am proud of the history we have created and the innovative solutions we have developed – from our classic drying cabinets to our latest groundbreaking product, the Alizé Steaming Cabinet. At NIMO, we focus on today's needs and how we can contribute to a more sustainable and responsible future for our customers and the planet.

With our core values – innovation, sustainability, care, and reliability – at the center, we will continue to move the company forward, always focused on creating long-term value. Thanks to the expertise and passion of our employees, along with our strong relationships with customers and partners, I see the future as a journey full of opportunities and growth.

NIMO today

Since relocating to Hova, this industrial town has become the heart of NIMO's production. Here, we manufacture drying cabinets with precision and care, and we continue to develop our products to meet the demands of the market.

Sustainability is at the core of NIMO's operations, from product design to community relations. We reduce environmental impact through energy-efficient products and sustainable materials. As an employer, we promote a safe and fair working environment and support the local community.

We combine traditional craftsmanship with advanced technology to ensure the highest quality in our products. Whether it's drying cabinets or new innovations, you can always count on precision and sustainability.

Our Future

With deep roots in Hova, NIMO will continue to deliver products that make a difference in everyday life, and we do so with the same passion and craftsmanship that has defined us since our founding in 1944.

From a small garage to a global company

On May 2, 1944, NIMO began its journey in a small garage in Jönköping, Sweden. The company initially focused on stainless steel products for large kitchens and restaurants. However, in the 1950s, one of the founders made a decisive move by purchasing the rights to drying cabinets, a decision that would shape the company's future.

By the end of the decade, the business relocated to the picturesque industrial town of Hova in Västra Götaland, Sweden, where our headquarters remain to this day.

In 1961, production of drying cabinets and laundry benches began, areas in which NIMO quickly became a pioneer with its innovative solutions. It soon became clear that we were on the right track, and our business expanded rapidly.

From our humble beginnings in the garage, NIMO has grown into a leading player in the industry. Our journey is an inspiring blend of tradition and innovation, and we are proud to combine our rich history with a constant drive to create solutions for the future.

Energy-efficient solutions and responsible resource management

At NIMO, sustainability is a fundamental part of our work. The textile industry demands significant resources, and it is more important than ever that we handle already-produced textiles in an environmentally friendly way. Our drying cabinets use only air for gentle and sustainable drying. We focus on minimizing our environmental impact through energy-efficient solutions and responsible resource management. By carefully selecting materials and optimizing production processes, we create value for both our customers and the environment.

With products like the Alizé Steaming Cabinet, which offers energy-efficient and chemical-free garment care, we demonstrate how innovation and economic sustainability go hand in hand.

We see sustainability as a long-term journey, and our commitment to a safe working environment and the local community in Hova is a key part of our responsibility. We continue to evolve to meet the demands and challenges of the future.

Our strength is in our people

At NIMO, it's our employees who make the difference. As one of the largest employers in Hova, with around 120 employees, we see our workforce as a family.

Many have been with us for generations, and their dedication and loyalty form the foundation of our success. We maintain a balanced gender distribution and diversity, which brings valuable perspectives, and we believe that when our employees thrive, it's reflected in our products and customer relationships.

A company rooted in the community

Our long history in Hova and the strong bond we have with the community means we deeply value the sense of togetherness.

At NIMO, we ensure that everyone feels part of our journey toward the future – together, we create both the best products and the best workplace.

And it is this strength – in our people – that makes NIMO what it is today.

With traditional craftsmanship and advanced production technology, we deliver market-leading and high-quality drying solutions for public, shared, and private environments.

Whether it's drying cabinets or other innovations, they are manufactured with high precision and a strong focus on energy efficiency.
