03 AMBIENT LIGHTING

THE FOUNDATION OF COZY SPACES

Ambient lighting, often called the “base” layer of lighting, is the unsung hero of cozy spaces. It creates the overall illumination, ensuring that a room feels inviting and balanced. However, what many don’t realize is that the type of ambient light you choose can dramatically affect the appearance of color in a room. A warm ambient light (from 1000K up to 3000K) enhances warm colors like reds, oranges, and yellows, making them more vibrant, while cooler lighting (above 4000K) tends to dull them down.

For those who want a serene, inviting atmosphere, warm lighting is essential, especially in spaces like living rooms and bedrooms where relaxation is key.

In living rooms and bedrooms, ambient lighting should be warm, not too bright, and even distributed to create a relaxing atmosphere.

“The right choices of lighting can do more than just provide light—they can enhance the aesthetic of the room while making it feel cozier.”

For a true sense of warmth, choose lighting that complements your decor and provides an alluring glow.

03.1 MEMORY SERIES

A unique option for creating comfortable ambient lighting is to use MEMORY series. It combines sleek design with a touch of nostalgia, bringing warmth and elegance to any space. Its soft light and hourglass-inspired shape make this floor lamp both practical and stylish.

The simple curves and minimalist design create a cozy, refined atmosphere. Picture coming home to the soft glow of the MEMORY series – it's more than lighting; it's a comforting illumination that enhances any room's ambiance, which offer a wide spread of light that instantly makes a living room feel more intimate and inviting.

Consider the room's function, the type of lighting needed, and how the luminaire complements the overall design.
