The Sixth Sense

This is the world's first lighting developed on the basis of the theory of proprioception. Such feeling like proprioception helps us to dispose ourselves in space. We placed the switches above the shades, so that they are located at the arm's length when he is sitting. And turn it on with your hand without taking your elbow off the work surface. In addition, thanks to this, a person can turn on one or two shades without looking at them.

Maya

is a series inspired by the culture and jewelry of the peoples of Mesoamerica. Jewelry endowed with magical ritual meaning, had a characteristic silhouette of an inverted crescent. This image formed the basis of the series. Gold-tone metal fittings are framed by glass with a polygonal ornament. Light, passing through the textured surface, is beautifully refracted, forming spectacular glare.
