LONGEVITY
& SUSTAINABILITY

We believe that premium quality and sustainability go hand in hand. At Fritz Hansen, we are working with social, environmental and economic considerations to find sustainable solutions, without compromising on quality.

From careful sourcing to operating our own factory on green electricity, we believe the details matter - in design and process.

LIFELONG LOVE AFFAIR

Do natural imperfections make great designs more beautiful?

Opinions of beauty are linked to people's deepest desires and inherent values, which is perhaps why they can often seem so strong and visceral. That, too, is simply natural. Attitudes towards the natural wear of materials differ too. Patina and the natural beauty marks displayed over time on materials such as metal, stone and leather are admired by some and disliked by others.

In some cases, vintage furniture designs with patina are prized by collectors for their uniqueness. The visible age of a given piece becomes a source of pride; its changes are natural and poetic reminder that nature is mutable. On the other hand, the desire for consistency is natural too, and linked to peace of mind. Some prefer slower change and less sensitivity from the space around them, favouring an evergreen look with materials that have been coloured and treated to stay relatively consistent over time.

The beauty of objects is how different they are from us, how they stand still and steady in the everchanging world. Differences of opinion and in preference are, after all, only natural.

SIMPLE ELEGANCE

Poul Kjærholm & Fritz Hansen

A trained cabinetmaker who completed his studies at the Danish School of Arts and Crafts, Poul Kjærholm had a particular interest in construction materials – especially steel, which he considered a material deserving the artistic respect that was commonly awarded to wood.

Poul Kjærholm initiated a collaboration with furniture manufacturer Ejvind Kold Christensen in 1955, which continued for the rest of Kjærholm's life with the two families remaining close to this day.

Two years after the designer's death, the Kjærholm trustees entrusted Fritz Hansen with the production and sales of The Kjærholm Collection – designs developed by Poul Kjærholm from 1951 to 1980.

Fritz Hansen is honoured to continue production and to distribute Poul Kjærholm's furniture to architects and private customers around the world.

TRANSPARENT DESIGN

For Poul Kjærholm, simplicity was essential. He insisted on materials of the highest quality and designed for transparency. Indeed, nothing in Kjærholm's designs is unnecessary or cosmetic.

ADMIRING ARNE JACOBSEN

Why the Italian editor, gallerist and businesswoman
Carla Sozzani collects Arne Jacobsen design.

Carla Sozzani is well known as the founder of 10 Corso Como, the Milanese concept store – and quite possibly the first of its kind in the world – which she founded in 1991. She is also a gallerist and editor, having worked with the likes of Bruce Weber and Herb Ritts and collaborated with Azzedine Alaia and Rei Kawakubo. She has curated exhibitions with Annie Leibovitz, Helmut Newton, David La Chappelle and Steven Meisel in her own gallery and at the Maison Européenne de la Photoraphie in Paris, among other locations. What many don't know is that Sozzani is also a long-time admirer and collector of Danish design.

Her fascination with Arne Jacobsen's work began in the 70s and has continued for almost 50 years. Today, Arne Jacobsen chairs can be found at 10 Corso Como, Sozzani's studio, and in her home.

'Harmony is the secret of any environment, and it only develops over time. For me it is like this: I can add more and more Eggs, Swans, Drops or Series 7 to my interiors, while at the same time they appear as if they were there for the first time or always. You see?' she says.

The organic shape of Arne Jacobsen designs captivates Sozzani, who describes the Series 7 chair as 'sensual.' The design, she explains, is so organic that it is almost like a human form. You can dress it up in any colour and it takes on a new attitude.

Sozzani pulls out her iPhone to share photographs of pieces from her personal collection, and a rare, vintage Jacobsen design that she is currently hunting for.

*Carla Sozzani has collaborated with Fritz Hansen on a palette of 16 colours for iconic Arne Jacobsen designs, released in 2020.

ADD A TOUCH OF COLOUR TO ANY ROOM

THE REBELLIOUS
ARNE JACOBSEN

Arne Jacobsen & Fritz Hansen

It is said that as a child growing up in Copenhagen, Arne Jacobsen painted over the Victorian wallpaper in his bedroom. But young Arne did not cover his walls with typical childish drawings or paint the ornate wallpaper boyish blue. Instead, he decided to paint his room entirely white.

His decision may seem commonplace today, but in the early twentieth century white walls were not yet in fashion. From the very beginning, Arne Jacobsen was ahead of his time.

For more than half of the twentieth century, Arne Jacobsen's ideas shaped the landscape of Danish design, rippling out from Scandinavia to influence architects and designers around the world. He directed projects ranging from complex buildings like Denmark's National Bank to meticulous challenges as humble as a special teaspoon for his cutlery set, working with a relatively small studio staff driven by an unquenchable desire to create.

Jacobsen's creative process centred on his strict consideration of detail. He brought his visions to life for patrons and builders with scrupulous, hand-painted watercolour sketches. In any given year, Jacobsen managed to design what others might be happy to produce in five.

VERSATILE BEAUTY

Experience the beauty of the Egg™ table – dining settings or elegant home office spaces.

When Arne Jacobsen first designed the Egg™ table in 1952, it was to elevate the everyday. The elliptical design is now offered for contemporary spaces in FSC-certified walnut veneer and polished chrome, continuing to raise the bar for our daily rituals. Equally purposeful as a kitchen or dining table in smaller spaces as it is in a home office, it fits seamlessly into any setting.

A PEARL OF LIGHT

Crafted in mouth-blown glass and brass, the Clam™ pendant designed by

DESIGNER SELECTION

Jaime Hayon
Hayon Studio

Jaime Hayon's new, curated textile combinations elevate the Ro™ and Fri™ lounge chairs.

Contemporary and colourful, a curated collection of textiles enhances Fritz Hansen's easy chair designs. Inspired by Hayon's travels to Thailand and selected specially by the Spanish designer, the premium upholstery textiles in distinctive colourways and textile pairings accentuate the chairs' frame and cushions to full effect.

"The vibrant mix of colours, textures and patterns experienced on my travels through Thailand led me to find unexpected combinations of upholstery textile that would bring new life to the chairs," comments Hayon on his new Designer Selection for Fritz Hansen.

Cecilie Manz

Over the course of her career, Danish designer Cecilie Manz has shown an impeccable ability to create lamps, ceramics, home accessories and furniture design that continually unite the Scandinavian tradition of simplicity with a modern, international expression.

While her work tends to abide by the 'form follows function' philosophy, each design is also imbued with a serene beauty. Pieces are understated yet present themselves to the world with an artistic twist.

HOUNOR EVERY FLOWER

'Ikebana is often translated to Japanese floral art or flower arrangement,' says Tomoko Sempo Yanagi, an ikebana professor and the chairperson of Ikenobo UK & Ireland, 'But, in my view, ikebana isn't just an artistic arrangement of flowers and plants, the practice is as spiritual as it is technical.'

Ikebana Large vase designed by Jaime Hayon.

Dating back to the seventh century when Buddhists started offering flowers at temple altars, ikebana was later formalised in the 16th century by emperors and aristocrats. The practice also has roots in the ancient Shinto religion – a belief system that conceives 'god,' or 'spirits,' as residing in natural phenomena such as trees, flowers and wind. Today, the art form is practiced by professionals and amateurs alike.

At its core, ikebana involves carefully selecting plants and flowers to create a form that honours natural characteristics when placed in a new environment.

Ikebana and Ikeru vases by Spanish designer Jamie Hayon are created in the spirit of the practice and its meditation on nature. The modern vases are designed to honour every flower placed within them, from stem to crown.
