A MESSAGE FROM CRAIG BUSCH

Progress has never been accidental. At Busch Systems®, it's something we design for—intentionally, thoughtfully, and with a clear understanding of the impact our choices create. This year, I'm more energized than ever by the role businesses can play in shaping stronger communities, smarter systems, and a more sustainable future.

I've always believed that good design does more than solve problems—it inspires better thinking. Whether we're creating waste diversion solutions, reimagining how products are made, or pushing ourselves to operate more responsibly, our goal is the same: to make it easier for people and organizations to do better. For us, sustainability isn't a claim; it's a commitment backed by transparency, data, and accountability.

That commitment continues to guide our actions. From advancing our Certified B Corporation™ performance, to measuring and sharing the environmental footprint of our products through CarbonGraph, to supporting global plastic recovery initiatives with Plastic Bank, we remain focused on turning intention into measurable results. Just as importantly, we continue to invest in education and dialogue—sharing insights, challenging norms, and helping move our industry forward through initiatives like our Green Thinking Webinar Series and Talkin' Trash.

Sustainability - environmental, social, and economic - requires a long-term view and the courage to lead differently. As innovators and problem-solvers, we're committed to building solutions that reflect that belief.

This year, there's a lot that I'm excited to share but for now, know that it represents another meaningful step forward. One that's driven by purpose, powered by design, and grounded in impact.

On behalf of everyone at Busch Systems, thank you for being part of what we're building together.

Craig Busch

Founder, President & Chief Design Officer
